

GLOBAL RACIAL JUSTICE AND THE EVERYDAY POLITICS OF CRISIS AND HOPE

international.ucla.edu/institute/blm

This series aims to provide a platform for scholars, students and activists to deepen our collective understanding of the structure and experience of racial oppression and the long struggle for racial justice, as well as to draw connections among unique but interlinked anti-racist struggles in the context of global histories of colonialism, imperialism and internationalism.

The Ungrateful Refugee: Dina Nayeri

In conversation with
Eryn Lê Espiritu Gandhi

Monday
November 22, 2021
9:30 - 10:45 a.m.
PST

Registration

Dina Nayeri

Dina Nayeri is the author of two novels and a book of creative nonfiction, The Ungrateful Refugee (2019), winner of the Geschwister Scholl Preis and finalist for the Los Angeles Times Book Prize, the Kirkus Prize, and Elle Grand Prix des Lectrices, and called by The Guardian “a work of astonishing, insistent importance.” She is currently a Fellow at the American Library in Paris.

Eryn Lê Espiritu Gandhi

Assistant Professor of Asian American Studies at the University of California, Los Angeles

Co-Sponsors:

Asian American Studies Center
Asia Pacific Center
Center for Near Eastern Studies
Center for the Study of Women
Center for the Study of International Migration
Center for European and Russian Studies
Department for Near Eastern Languages and Cultures
Department of Gender Studies
Institute of American Cultures
Program of Iranian Studies
Program on Caribbean Studies

Organizers:

International Institute
Asian American Studies Department