

QUEER CAREER: SEXUALITY AND WORK IN MODERN AMERICA

Margot Canaday

Thursday, December 7th

12 - 1:30pm

Bunche 6275 (Lunch included)

Margot Canaday, Princeton University Dodge Professor of History, is an award-winning historian who studies gender and sexuality in modern America. She is the author of The Straight State: Sexuality and Citizenship in Twentieth Century America (Princeton, 2009) and co-editor of Intimate States: Gender, Sexuality, and Governance in Modern U.S. History (Chicago, 2021). Her book, Queer Career: Sexuality and Work in Modern America (Princeton, 2023), explores the ways that the workplace has mattered for queer people over time, both as a site of vulnerability and exploitation but sometimes also of deep meaning.

Co-sponsored by the UCLA History of Gender & Sexuality Working Group, History Department, Institute for Research on Labor and Employment, Center for the Study of Women, Luskin Center for History and Policy, Gender Studies Department, LGBTQ Studies, Labor Studies, and the UCLA School of Law Williams Institute
