KEYNOTE SESSION

PRESENTER: Dr. Kara Keeling

Notes on the Vestibular

In this presentation, Keeling offers a short meditation on Black feminist Hortense Spillers' use of the phrase "vestibular to culture" in her seminal essay "Mama's Baby, Papa's Maybe." She focuses in particular on how sound functions in relationship to a specific sense of "the vestibular" and what attending to this relationship offers to the Black study of sound.

Kara Keeling is professor in the Department of Cinema and Media Studies in the School of Cinematic Arts and of American Studies and Ethnicity in Dornsife College of Letters, Arts, and Sciences at the University of Southern California. Keeling is author of Queer Times, Black Futures (New York University Press, 2019), and The Witch's Flight: The Cinematic, the Black Femme, and the Image of Common Sense (Duke University Press, 2007), and co-editor (with Josh Kun) of Sound Clash: Listening to American Studies, a collection of writings about sound and American Studies and (with Colin MacCabe and Cornel West) of a selection of writings by the late James A. Snead entitled European Pedigrees/African Contagions: Racist Traces and Other Writing.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Thinking Gender 2024: “Dystopian Realities, Feminist Utopias” would not have been possible without the valuable input and contributions of our generous co-sponsors, featured speakers, faculty moderators, participating scholars and students, and the Thinking Gender 2024 Planning Committee.

This year, the conference is held in a hybrid mode. In-person graduate student panels are led by faculty moderators from our UCLA community. We would like to thank moderators Michelle Liu Carriger, Joshua Guzmán, and Esha Momeni.

We are grateful to Kaya Napachoti for designing the fabulous conference graphic design.

We thank UCLA James West Alumni Center for providing space and services. We also thank Jenston Production Systems for setting up and managing the AV equipment.

Finally, we are fortunate to have had a creative and hardworking planning committee for the conference. We thank CSW|Streisand Center Director Grace Hong; CSW|Streisand Center Associate Director Nina Eidsheim; Thinking Gender 2024 Coordinator Lynette Dixon; Management Services Officer Rosa Chung; Program and Research Developer Katja Antoine; Administrative Specialist Eva Amarillas Diaz; and Outreach and Marketing Manager Rosie Grant.

We are grateful for the contributions of our CSW|Streisand Center student assistants and researchers.
