CREATING INCLUSIVE SOCIOTECHNICAL SYSTEMS: CLASSIFICATION, INEQUALITY, AND EXPERTISE IN EPILEPSY CARE

PUBLIC TALK BY DR. MEGH MARATHE

DATE & TIME

Tuesday, Nov. 5th
2:00 PM- 3:00 PM

LOCATION

CSW | Streisand Center
1500 Public Affairs Building,
UCLA Campus

RECEPTION TO FOLLOW WITH LIGHT REFRESHMENTS

COME JOIN US

for an enlightening talk by Dr. Megh Marathe on Inclusive Sociotechnical Systems: Classification, Inequality, and Expertise in Epilepsy Care event.

DESCRIPTION

This talk examines how classification amplifies or alleviates the exclusion of marginalized people in healthcare. Through the case of epilepsy, the talk shows how reductionist classifications lead to narrow definitions of wellbeing and reinstate gendered, racist, classist, and ableist hierarchies. These findings advance our understanding of how experts navigate classificatory decisions and of technology's role in amplifying inequality and how to work towards a more just society.

CLICK OR SCAN TO RSVP

UCLA Center for Critical Internet Inquiry

UCLA College Social Sciences
CSW
CENTER FOR THE STUDY OF WOMEN
BARBRA STREISAND CENTER

DR. MEGH MARATHE
Assistant Professor, Michigan State University, Department of Media & Information and the Center for Bioethics & Social Justice